Who Killed the College President's Daughter?

Schools should be among the safest places for young people. But something is just not right at St. Albanus, a private Catholic college in Bowie County, Texas.

When the editor of the school paper shows up for an interview with his team's top golfer on the golf course, they come across a murdered woman on the 14th green, being held by her hysterical boyfriend. The victim is the college president's daughter, and the boyfriend is promptly arrested.

Since the sheriff seems more concerned about his upcoming election than digging deeper into the crime, four reporters on the college newspaper follow the mysterious trail of the campus murderer. Will the students discover who really committed the crime?
